Notes on Contributors

Matthew Groe earned two BA degrees from the University of Northern Iowa and his MA and PHD from Villanova University. He is currently an Associate Professor of Philosophy at Jacksonville University. mgroe@ju.edu

Scott Kimbrough is a professor of philosophy and chair of the Division of Humanities at Jacksonville University. His recent philosophical interests include moral psychology, philosophy of emotion, and the implications these topics have for the understanding of rationality, moral reasoning, and ethics. skimbro@ju.edu

Carmen Maria Marcous is a graduate student in the Department of Philosophy at Florida State University. The topic of diversity serves as a thematic cornerstone in a number of her current research projects, and she has recently published elsewhere on the subject (see How to Solve the Diversity Problem in the APA Newsletter on Feminism and Philosophy, Spring 2014: Volume 13, Number 2). Her interests include feminist and critical race theory, social and political philosophy, and the history and philosophy of science and society. cmarcous@fsu.edu

Shelley Park is an Associate Professor of Philosophy and Humanities at the University of Central Florida. She is the author of Mothering Queerly, Queering Motherhood: Resisting Monomaterialism in Adoptive, Lesbian, Blended, and Polygamous Families (NY: SUNY Press, 2013) and is currently working on a monograph on the ethics of care in a technological age. Her interests include feminist philosophy, critical race theory, postcolonial theory, kinship studies and ethics. Shelley.Park@ucf.edu

Peter Olen is an Instructor of Philosophy at Lake Sumter State College and the current editor of the Florida Philosophical Review. He primarily works on issues at the intersection of the history of analytic philosophy and the history and philosophy of science (as found most notably in the works of Wilfrid Sellars and Rudolf Carnap). He is currently finishing the manuscript for Wilfrid Sellars and the Foundations of Normativity (Palgrave Macmillan 2016). PeterOlen@gmail.com

Brook J. Sadler is an Associate Professor of philosophy in the Department of Humanities and Cultural Studies at the University of South Florida. She has published philosophical articles and poems in numerous journals. Her interests include ethical theory, especially Kantian moral philosophy, feminism, philosophy of emotion, and philosophy of film. brooksadler@usf.edu

Ryan Simonelli works primarily in epistemology and philosophy of language. He graduated from New College of Florida in May, writing his undergraduate thesis on an approach to epistemological issues drawing from Robert Brandom and Donald Davidson. Ryan has also spent some time studying at Oxford University and University of Colorado at Boulder. He recently submitted his Ph.D. applications and is now just anxiously waiting to find out where he'll spend the next several years of his life.

Nancy Stanlick is Assistant Dean in the College of Arts and Humanities and Associate Professor of Philosophy at the University of Central Florida. Her primary research areas are in ethics, social philosophy, and the history of modern and American philosophy. Nancy.Stanlick@ucf.edu

Josh Turkewitz is a doctoral candidate at Florida State University. His research is primarily in epistemology and metaphysics. His work investigates the ways in which our inherently vague linguistic and conceptual apparatuses can produce knowledge. josh.turkewitz@gmail.com