Notes on Contributors

Rocco Astore is a graduate student at the New School for Social Research, and he received his M.A. in Liberal Studies from the College of Staten Island/CUNY and his B.A. in Philosophy from Hunter College/CUNY. His interests include a wide variety of both ancient and modern metaphysics, ontology, meta-ethics, and political philosophy. Philosophers that are significant to him and his studies are Parmenides, Plato, Plotinus, Descartes, Spinoza, Kant, and Hegel.

astor421@newschool.edu

Anthony Crisafi was completing a second Ph.D. at Friedrich-Schiller Universität Jena, Germany, with a dissertation titled “Hegel’s Noesis: Intelligent Consciousness and Hegel's Contribution to the Phenomenology of Cognitive Science, Critical Theory, and Digital Humanities” at the time of his sudden death. He earned his first Ph.D. from the Texts and Technology program at the University of Central Florida, and he taught philosophy and humanities courses for over a decade at the University of Central Florida and Valencia College.

Stephen Faison is Assistant Professor of Philosophy at Florida A&M University. He received his Ph.D. in philosophy from Vanderbilt University, and his primary research interests include existentialism, Nietzsche, political realism, and philosophy and film/fiction. He is the author of, Existentialism, Film Noir, and Hard-Boiled Fiction, which identifies and examines a uniquely American brand of existentialism that was created independently of European philosophy and outside the world of academic philosophy. His essays have appeared in Monty Python and Philosophy, Overheard in Seville, S.Ph. Press, and Philosophy Now. stephen.faison@famu.edu

Sally Ferguson is a graduate of The University of Texas at Austin’s Ph.D. program in philosophy. She has worked and taught at the University of West Florida since 1995, where she is currently Associate Professor. She spent one wonderful year in New Zealand under the tutelage of Kim Sterelny (currently of the Australian National University) at Victoria University of Wellington. Her research interests include Early Modern Philosophy, particularly Locke and Hume, as well as philosophy of biology. sallyf@uwf.edu

Adam Hauptfeld is a doctoral student at the University of Miami. He received his B.A. in philosophy with a minor in politics from the University of California at Santa Cruz. Most of his research time is spent investigating the relationship between phenomenology and mental content, but his many other interests include social contract theory, the nature of ideology, debating Descartes's historical importance, and the Vienna Circle. a.hauptfeld@umiami.edu

Joshua Myers is a Ph.D. student in philosophy at New York University, having completed his B.A. in philosophy and psychology at the University of Miami. He is primarily interested in philosophy of mind and epistemology, and especially the ways in which philosophical theorizing in these areas can be informed by developments in the cognitive sciences. joshualmyers@gmail.com

Ofelia Schutte is a Cuban-born Latina philosopher, currently Professor Emerita of Philosophy at the University of South Florida in Tampa. Formerly, she taught philosophy for over 20 years at the University of Florida in Gainesville after receiving the Ph.D. in philosophy at Yale University. Her first book, Beyond Nihilism: Nietzsche without Masks offered a critical reading of Nietzsche from a feminist perspective. Today she is known primarily for her work on Latin American feminisms and for her leadership in promoting the field of Latin American philosophy in the United States. oschutte@usf.edu

Michael Strawser is Professor of Philosophy and Chair of the Department of Philosophy at the University of Central Florida. His research interests are the philosophy of love, ethics, Continental philosophy (Modern & Contemporary), phenomenology, and the philosophy of religion. His books include Kierkegaard’s God and the Good Life (co-edited with Stephen Minister and Aaron Simmons), Kierkegaard and the Philosophy of Love, Asking Good Questions: Case Studies in Ethics and Critical Thinking (with Nancy Stanlick), and Both/And: Reading Kierkegaard from Irony to Edification. strawser@ucf.edu